REPORT

This week, October 15-21, 2023, celebrated National Chemistry Week (NCW). NCW takes place on the third week of October and usually coincides with Mole Day. NCW is a public awareness campaign of the American Chemical Society (ACS) that promotes the value of Chemistry in everyday life. The program aims to unite ACS local sections, student communities, technical divisions, businesses, schools, and individuals in sharing how important chemistry is to people's quality of life. NCW's main mission is to reach the public, especially K-12 students, and make their interest and experience in chemistry a positive one.

This year's theme for NCW is "The Healing Power of Chemistry." The theme focuses on health and medicine, including chemistry's crucial role in developing medicines and vaccinations. The theme is reflected in the chemistry department's curriculum at Colorado State University. The program offers Health Sciences as a concentration within the Chemistry major. Our department celebrated National Chemistry Week this year by promoting the undergrad research that is done in our labs.

World Food Day is marked every year on October 16 and is a worldwide initiative aimed toward bringing issues to light about food security and hunger. The day serves to remind humanity about the challenges of food shortage and malnutrition faced by millions around the world. The day focuses on the requirement for feasible farming practices, equitable food distribution, and availability of nutritious food for all.

The day urges governments, associations, and people to make a move towards accomplishing the 'Unified Nations Sustainable Development Goal of zero hunger' by 2030. It serves as a stage for conversations, support, and community-driven attempts to address food-related emergencies and promote a world where nobody goes to bed hungry.

What is the history behind Food Day?

World Food Day marks the establishment of the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the United Nations in 1945. The association was founded to address the urgent requirement to battle hunger and further promote food security around the world

After 34 years in November 1979, it was recognised as a world holiday at the 20th FAO conference. Following this, 150 nations continued to celebrate the day after it earned its official recognition by the United Nations.

Since 2014, the World Food Day has been utilised to promote the concept of taking care of the world and diminishing poverty in rural nations.

What is the importance of World Food Day?

The essential focus of World Food Day is to highlight the need for the eradication of hunger and malnutrition around the world. It's a chance to focus on the significance of sustainable agribusiness, food production, distribution, and consumption

REPORT

The department of Chemistry and IIC jointly organized FIELD EXPOSURE VISIT TO PRE-INCUBATION UNIT on 31.01.2024 at ICAR, Krishi Vigyan Kendra, Kilnelli, Thiruvannamalai. On this occasion totally 65 students participated and benefited in this program.

This programme began with an introductory talk by Mr. M. Suresh, Head and Senior Scientist, ICAR, KVK, Kilnelli. He explained the research centre and its range of agricultural welfare-related research projects.

Mr. Choudry, the Technical In-charge, conducted a valuable demonstration session on water and soil analysis for agriculture. His detailed explanation about the nature of soil and the water requirements for cultivation suggests a comprehensive understanding of the subject.

Students visited various incubation units such as Azolla cultivation, Mushroom cultivation, and Vermi-compost adds practical exposure to the theoretical knowledge. These units likely showcase sustainable and innovative agricultural practices, providing valuable insights for the participants. He focused on the nature of soil and water levels for optimal cultivation indicate a practical approach to agricultural education.

This program was particularly beneficial for young entrepreneurs who may be interested in venturing into agricultural fields. The hands-on experience gained from visiting incubation units can be instrumental in inspiring and equipping them with the necessary knowledge for successful agricultural practices.

Students' active participation in the program indicates a deep interest and engagement, which was necessary for learning to occur effectively. Overall, such initiatives contribute significantly to the development of a skilled and knowledgeable workforce in the field of agriculture.
