Date : 20.12.2019

Time : 10.00 AM

The department of computer science has organized an industrial visit to Hewlett Packard on 20.12.2019 for the second year B.Sc., Computer science students.

The first session taken by Mr. S. Senthil Kumar on "Introduction to Python Programming". He elaborately lectured on python Programming Techniques and its applications. The student learnt python programming well.

Second Session started on "Raspberry Pi". An overview of Raspberry, connectivity of various accessories using raspberry and controlling the devices by raspberry tools were taught.

In order to create various projects using raspberry, this session was very useful for them for implementing real time projects.

The third session on "Communication Skills" were taught as interaction session. By using this session, the students can communicate, answering and facing interviews boldly.

Finally certificates were issued to all the students.

- Animations

Transitions are a type of animations in between slides. You can view the Transitions pane to view all possible transition effects you can use. These are ideal when you want to have a noticeable transition between two slides, as you'll find in some examples later in this tutorial.

Animations are animations on your slide. You can view your options in the Animations pane. These are often used to add action effects while you're presenting your slide. For example, an animation can be
